WOODROW WILSON TAKES OATH AS TWENTY-EIGHTH PRESIDENT OF U. S.; INAUGURAL ADDRESS, SHORTEST ON RECORD, PLEA FOR HIGHER IDEALS.

THOUSANDS WITNESS WILSON'S INAUGURATION AS PRESIDENT

Immense Throng Sees Oath Administered and Views Impressive Civic and Military Parade.

NEW EXECUTIVE IS IN CONTROL

First Time in 16 Years a Democrat is Ushered Into White House and Delegations from Every State Pay Homage to New Jersey College Man.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—More than a half-million lusty-lunged Americans today acclaimed, in typical American fashion, a new ruler. A tall, slender man, wreathed in smiles, standing in his carriage, bowing and waving to a mile of densely-packed humanity was the object of the President Woodrow Wilson. Vice President Thomas R. Marshall had his share, too.

Following the exact path of twenty-seven former Presidents, President Wilson was the central figure of the pomp and pageantry of the greatest inaugural parade ever assembled on historic Pennsylvania avenue. It was an observance of the precedents of generations.

From the steps of the inaugural reviewing stand at the Capitol, with the kiss of the Bible in the hands of Chief Justice White still warm upon his lips, President Wilson was the object of tumultuous and vociferous applause as he led the pageant of 50,000 soldiers, sailors and civilians to the White House, and there reviewed them.

Today's parade was declared the most pretentious of any in history. In length, numbers, and novel features it was unique. For nearly three hours it wended its way through Pennsylvania avenue. It was nearly dusk before the last marchers passed the new President through the "Court of Honor."

Crowds along Pennsylvania avenue packed every bit of room and filled every seat in the capacious grandstands. The broad avenue, swept clean and carefully roped off was bordered by two walls of a gay canyon of bunting, lined with a cheering multitude that filled every inch of space and every available balcony and window. Fakers did a thriving business in selling big packing boxes to crowds afoot. These were pushed near the curb and afforded the owner a private grandstand of his own.

The greatest crowd that ever greeted an incoming President and Vice President shouted itself hoarse. Three hundred thousand Washingtonians and visitors, estimated at 200,000, viewed the spectacle.

Represented in the ranks of marchers were the army, navy, West Point and Annapolis cadets, Governors and their staffs, 100 bands, veterans of many wars, political clubs, Tammany "braves," cowboys, college men, and suffragettes. It was replete with startling, novel and unique features, from Indian braves and college glee clubs to crowds of temperance "white ribboners."

Specially predominant was the college atmosphere—education's tribute to a great educator, President Wilson. Thousands of college men, alumni of practically every great university and college of the country, were in line.

The parade was composed of four "grand" divisions. First was the army and navy, with nearly 7,000 men; second, the State militia, with about 12,000 men; third, war veterans, and fourth, civic organizations. Every State and almost every large city of the nation sent its quota to swell the stream of splendor.

Forming about the Capitol since dawn this morning, the parade began shortly before 1:30 o'clock. While President Wilson was delivering his inaugural address, thousands of troops began forming the line of march through the Capitol grounds. Preceded by a squad of 100 mounted motorcycle and bicycle policemen, the head of the parade extended eight blocks to the Peace Monument, at the foot of Pennsylvania avenue, before President Wilson and Vice President Marshall and fifty carriages filled with members of the Supreme Court, Senate, House, inaugural committeemen, relatives of the incoming executives, and political leaders filed in front of the Capitol after the formal inaugural ceremonies there.

President Wilson with former President Taft seated at his left, occupied the foremost carriage. It drew away from the Capitol reviewing stand with the Essex Cavalry Troop as an escort, while Vice President Marshall, escorted by the Culver Military Academy "Black Horse Hussars," of Indiana, drew in behind.

In front of the Presidential carriage and its escort was Major General Leonard Wood, Grand Marshal of the parade, his staff and thirty aides.

Following custom, ex-President Taft sat with his hat on throughout the ride, even ignoring an occasional and faint shout for the outgoing Republican executive. Tradition and

ACTION TO RECALL JUDGE.

First Election in California is Now Assured.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 4.—The first election ever held in this State to recall a judicial officer was assured today, under a constitutional amendment passed in 1911, when the city registrar certified to the sufficiency of a petition initiated and circulated by women. The petition carried 10,000 names.

Charles E. Weller, a police magistrate is the judge whose recall is demanded. He reduced the bail set by another police judge in case of a prisoner accused of attacking a young girl. The prisoner fled on release.

WILSON'S CABINET NAMES MADE PUBLIC TOMORROW

President Will Not Send List to the Senate for Confirmation Today.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President-elect Wilson will not send his Cabinet selections to the Senate until tomorrow, according to a statement made this morning by his private secretary Joseph Tumulty.

The list of appointments was to have been submitted this afternoon, but when the President-elect learned that the Senate met today only for the purpose of giving the oath to Vice President Marshall, he decided to keep the list in reserve until tomorrow morning.

From authorative sources is given the following list of names, which Washington accepts as the final selections of the President-elect:

SECRETARY OF STATE—William Jennings Bryan, Nebraska.
SECRETARY OF TREASURY—William G. McAdoo, New York.
SECRETARY OF WAR—Lindley M. Garrison, New Jersey.
ATTORNEY GENERAL—James McReynolds, Tennessee.
POSTMASTER GENERAL—Representative Albert Burleson, Texas.
SECRETARY OF THE NAVY—Josephus Daniels, North Carolina.
SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR—Franklin K. Lane, California.
SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE—David E. Huston, Missouri.
SECRETARY OF COMMERCE—Representative William C. Redfield, New York.
SECRETARY OF LABOR—Representative William B. Wilson, Pennsylvania.

When 200 eager newspaper men burst in on the President-elect this morning, he declared that he would have absolutely nothing to say until noon, when he will deliver the official address.

SUFFRAGETTES ON WARPATH

Gathering Turned Into Indignation Meeting Following Parade.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—The big Suffragette gathering in Continental hall last evening developed into an indignation meeting when hundreds of angry "Votes for Women" advocates roundly scored the Washington police and urged upon the new administration to conduct a rigid investigation into that department.

During the big Suffragette parade yesterday the police were unable to check the thousands of spectators and jeers and jibes from unruly members of the crowd made trouble for the marchers. At times the women had to fight their way through the mob and not until a detail of cavalry from Fort Meyer arrived could the path along Pennsylvania avenue be cleared.

Miss Inez Milholland of New York, one of the mounted leaders, and others of her aides, assisted the soldiers in charging the crowds. One woman struck a man across the face who had made an insulting remark to her. The parade was a success in spots.

Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind girl, was so exhausted by her march that she was unable to appear at the meeting. Hundreds of women were so badly exhausted that they were forced to give up much of the program.

NEW CABINET JOB.

President Taft Signs Bill Creating Commerce Portfolio.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—President Taft signed the Sulzer bill, creating the Department of Labor, to be presided over by a member of the President's Cabinet.

Soon after the bill received the President's signature, Representative William B. Wilson of Pennsylvania, announced that he had been tendered and had accepted the portfolio.

FATE PURSUES THE COBAUGH FAMILY; FOURTH ONE KILLED

Railroad Man's Death at Rockwood Adds to Tragedy.

CRUSHED AT THE COAL TIPPLE

Father, Veteran B. & O. Engineer, was Blown Up in Locomotive Explosion; Two Brothers Killed on Rails and Another Died from Typhoid Fever.

Special to The Courier.

MEYERSDALE, March 4.—Lewis Daniel Cobaugh, youngest son of the late Charles P. Cobaugh, the veteran Baltimore & Ohio engineer, and Rebella Parks Cobaugh, was almost instantly killed about noon yesterday at the Western Maryland railroad coaling station at Rockwood. The cable on the hoist used in lifting the coal to the chutes parted, and a bucket containing a ton or more of coal descended and pinned the unfortunate man between the timbers and the bucket, crushing him in a horrible manner. The remains were taken to a local undertaking establishment and prepared for burial, and later were taken to the home of his mother.

The deceased is survived by his aged mother, who for the past year or more has been rendered almost helpless by reason of a stroke of apoplexy. His widow, who was Miss Ella Williams, and two children, Grace and Anabel, aged six and three years, respectively, survive. He is also survived by one brother and three sisters, as follows: George P. Cobaugh of Johnstown; Mrs. W. A. Shoemaker of Meyersdale, and Mrs. William Millhouse and Mrs. George E. Beatty, both of Rockwood.

About 22 years ago the father of the deceased, the old engineer, "Dad" Cobaugh, as he was so familiarly known, was blown up in a locomotive explosion and the injuries received resulted in his death. Prior to death of the father, the oldest son, William, while making a coupling in the Rockwood yards, had his head crushed by projecting rails on two loaded flat cars, dying in a few weeks after the accident. Next, Charles, a younger son, while working in the B. & O. shops at Connellsville, was stricken with malignant typhoid fever, expiring in a few weeks. A few years ago another son, a flagman on the B. & O., was pinioned by a sideswipe wreck in his caboose, directly alongside of a demolished engine, and was scalded to death.

ROCKWOOD MAN, IN POOR HEALTH, COMMITS SUICIDE

U. L. Glessner is Found in a Hay Mow, His Throat Cut; Son Resides in Connellsville.

Special to The Courier.

ROCKWOOD, March 4.—Slashing his throat from ear to ear with a razor, U. L. Glessner of South Rockwood, committed suicide. Ill health is attributed as the cause of the act.

Mr. Glessner had been a resident of South Rockwood for two years. He had not enjoyed the best of health for several weeks, but it was not thought that his condition was causing him any anxiety.

Sunday morning he arose quietly without disturbing any members of the family, slipped out of the rear door, and made his way to a hay mow. There his body was found some time later by Mrs. Glessner.

An inquest was held last night at 8 o'clock by Deputy Coroner Haines. The funeral will be held this afternoon at Berlin.

Besides his wife Mr. Glessner is survived by six children, one of whom, Musser Glessner is a resident of Connellsville.

COMPLAINT UNFAIR

Board of Health Replies to Kick from State Health Department.

Complaints received by the State Health authorities in Harrisburg that adequate precautions are not taken by the Board of Health of Connellsville to stamp out contagious disease is indignantly denied by members of the board.

Secretary Alex B. Hood received a communication from Secretary Dixon yesterday informing him that the State authorities are in receipt of complaints that proper precautions in placarding houses where infectious diseases exist, are not taken.

The name of the owner of one of the houses said to contain a patient afflicted with measles was given in the letter, Secretary Hood directed Health Officer B. Rottler to investigate the matter. Going over his books Mr. Rottler found that all requirements of the law had been fulfilled at the place in question.

COUNCIL AGAIN HAS POLICE MATTERS TO CONSIDER TONIGHT

Fight May be Waged Against Appointments of E. U. Hetzel.

RAILROAD COMMITTEE ACTIVE

Will Submit Suggestions of Pennsylvania Railroad for Consideration and May Have Recommendations to Make; Finance Committee Meets.

Council meets in regular session tonight. Several matters of importance are on the calendar for consideration. Among them are the report of the Railroad Committee on its conference with officials of the Pennsylvania railroad at which were discussed plans for safeguarding the road's right of way through the borough; the appointees to the police department, as recommended by the Police Committee; several important ordinances, and sundry bills.

The report of the Police Committee will probably prove the most interesting part of the session. Following the "strike" the committee held a session for the purpose of appointing men temporarily to the force. Of the original seven members chosen by the committee, only three reported for duty at City Hall, and, without calling another meeting of this committee, Chairman E. U. Hetzel appointed others to fill the vacancies. For this reason some of the members of the committee may object to the report.

Whether or not it will be objected to is conjectural. Chairman Hetzel has been confined to his home for a week by illness, but he will be able to attend the meeting. Some of the lawmakers are of the opinion that the means he used to recruit and reorganize the force were justifiable, and intend to defend Chairman Hetzel's actions if cause should arise.

The report of the Railroad Committee will embrace the proposals and responses of Chairman Thomas Brennan and officials of the Pennsylvania railroad made in an effort to safeguard the grade crossings and improve the service here.

At a recent conference with the committee, an official of the railroad declared that his company is ready and willing to do whatever it can to guard the public from injury, and also that it would, if conditions were such that it could, improve its train service. The official requested that Council draw up a formal statement of what is required, and the matter will be taken up by the proper officers of the road.

CONSTRUCTIVE REFORM IS THE KEYNOTE OF WILSON'S MESSAGE

Inaugural Speech, Shortest on Record, Urges Moderation in Working Changes Pledged to People.

THREE MEN DIE IN MINES.

Two Accidents Caused by Falling Slate Result Fatally.

GREENSBURG, March 4.—Three men were killed in two mine accidents near here yesterday. Frank Walla, 38, and Ernest Nople, 35, Italians, were buried under a fall of slate in a mine of the Jamison Coal & Coke Company, in Jamison No. 3, this afternoon. Their bodies have not been recovered. Both were working in the same room and it is thought they put off a shot of powder. Both were married.

In a mine of the Ocean Coal Company in Herminie, a fall of slate this afternoon killed John Liter, a Slav, 26 years old.

WARM WELCOME IS EXTENDED GOV. TENER IN WASHINGTON

Wins Admiration When Escorted by Tenth Regiment and Pittsburg Troop.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Governor Tener was given a warm reception upon his arrival in Washington yesterday. Instead of the quiet entry which had been planned, a delegation of Boy Scouts insisted upon escorting the Governor to his headquarters.

The "Fighting Tenth" was given an equally cordial welcome. The boys have been given the freedom of the Army and Navy Club, a rather unusual honor, and have made a favorable impression. In today's parade one battalion of the regiment was led by Lieutenant Colonel Thomas S. Crago of Waynesburg, whose term in Congress has just expired.

The Washington Infantry of Pittsburg also attracted general atention and aided materially in letting Washingtonians know that the National Guard, as now constituted, is much different from the organization which several years ago enacted scenes which were not creditable. Excellent order has prevailed among the Pennsylvania Guardsmen and they are proving among the most popular military organizations in the city.

The regiment formed at noon today and was reviewed in Massachusetts avenue by the Governor. In the parade the Pennsylvanians marched in the following order: Governor Tener and staff, Company A, Engineer Corps; Brigadier General C. M. Clement and staff; Fourth Regiment, Colonel O'Neil commanding; Tenth Regiment, Colonel Coulter commanding; First Regiment, Colonel Eidel commanding.

DISCUSS PATRONAGE

Pennsylvania Democrats Will Plan a Division of Political Jobs.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—A conference of Pennsylvania Democrats will be held tonight for the purpose of determining the apportionment of patronage under the new Administration. The question of appointments will devolve upon the State leaders.

A preliminary chat was held yesterday with Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer at the head. George W. Guthrie of Pittsburg was there. So, also, was Bruce F. Sterling and Congressman-elect Wooda N. Carr of Fayette; Curtis H. Gregg, retiring Congressman from Westmoreland, and others.

It is said that Sterling will have much to say regarding the dispensation of Federal patronage in Fayette. He is also reported to covet the position of United States District Attorney in Western Pennsylvania, a job towards which Congressman Gregg's eyes have turned.

THUGS' VICTIM DIES

Man Beaten at Church Meeting Dies from Injuries.

MORGANTOWN, March 4.—From wounds received when he was attacked by a crowd of young men at a church meeting at Hagans, this county, last February 8, Ira G. Cordray, 42 years old, of Hagans, died yesterday.

Cordray took his family to church in a sleigh February 8. After the services he found a crowd of young men from McCurdysville had stolen his blankets. When Cordray asked for his blankets the young men attacked and beat him severely about the head and back, and blood poison developed.

COP GETS A CALL.

Finds No Trace of Burglar in the Vicinity of Church Place.

Patrolman Laley received a call from a residence at the upper end of Church place at 3 A. M. to the effect that burglars were active in the vicinity. One of the occupants of the house had been awakened by the sound of someone making an effort to raise one of the first-floor windows, and immediately notified City Hall.

When the officer responded, the man had disappeared.

FLAYS THE BANKING SYSTEM

Opportunity Stifled by Special Interests; Resources Have Been Wasted and Human Rights Ignored, He Declares; Party is Not the Issue.

United Press Telegram.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Before a crowd of thousands, Woodrow Wilson at noon took oath of office as President of the United States and delivered the shortest inaugural address in history. He placed the Democratic party on trial, delegated by the people to work certain changes, party success being measured by its accomplishments.

Insisting upon a sane, orderly execution of its program, President Wilson declared that the Democratic party cannot effect reforms in a radical manner; existing conditions must be carefully considered and changes effected in a manner to cause a minimum of disturbance. He advocated tariff reform, a revision of the banking system, wider opportunity for the farmer and the individual and elimination of industrial waste, calling on all honest, patriotic, forward-looking men to his standard. He said:

There has been a change of government. It began two years ago when the House of Representatives became Democratic by a decisive majority. It has now been completed. The Senate about to assemble will also be Democratic. The offices of President and Vice President have been put into the hands of Democrats. What does the change mean? That is the question that is uppermost in our minds today. That is the question I am going to try to answer, in order, if I may, to interpret the occasion.

It means much more than the mere success of a party. The success of a party means little except when the nation is using that party for a large and definite purpose. No one can mistake the purpose for which the nation now seeks to use the Democratic party. It seeks to use it to interpret a change in its own plans and point of view. Some old things with which we had grown familiar, and which had begun to creep into the very habit of our thought and of our lives, have altered their aspect as we have latterly looked critically upon them, with fresh, awakened eyes; have dropped their disguises and shown themselves alien and sinister. Some new things, as we look frankly upon them, willing to comprehend their real character, have come to assume the aspect of things long believed in and familiar, stuff of our own convictions. We have been refreshed by a new insight into our own life.

We see that in many things that life is very great. It is incomparably great in its material aspects, in its body of wealth, in the diversity and sweep of its energy, in the industries which have been conceived and built up by the genius of individual men and the limitless enterprise of groups of men. It is great, also, very great, in its moral force. Nowhere else in the world have noble men and women exhibited in more striking forms the beauty and energy of sympathy and helpfulness and counsel in their efforts to rectify wrong, alleviate suffering, and set the weak in the way of strength and hope. We have built up, moreover, a great system of government, which has stood through a long age as in many respects a model for those who seek to set liberty upon foundations that will endure against fortuitous change, against storm and accident. Our life contains every great thing, and contains it in great abundance.

But the evil has come with the good, and much fine gold has been corroded. With riches has come inexcusable waste. We have squandered a great part of what we might have used, and have not stopped to conserve the exceeding bounty of nature, without which our genius for enterprise would have been worthless and impotent, scorning to be careful, shamefully prodigal as well as admirably efficient. We have been proud of our industrial achievements, but we have not hitherto stopped thoughtfully enough to count the human cost, the cost of lives snuffed out, of energies overtaxed and broken, the fearful physical and spiritual cost to the men and women and children upon whom the dead weight of the burden of it all has fallen pitilessly the years through. The groans and agony of it all had not yet reached our ears, the solemn, moving undertone of our life, coming up out of the mines and factories and out of every home where the struggle had its intimate and familiar seat. With the great government went many deep secret things which we too long delayed to look into and scrutinize with candid, fearless eyes. The great government we loved has too often been made use of for private and selfish purposes, and those who used it had forgotten the people.

At last a vision has been vouchsafed us of our life as a whole. We see the bad with the good, the debased and decadent with the sound and vital. With this vision we approach new affairs. Our duty is to cleanse, to reconsider, to restore, to correct the evil without impairing the good, to purify and humanize every process of our common life without weakening or sentimentalizing it. There has been something crude and heartless and unfeeling in our haste to succeed and be great. Our thought has been

KIDNEYS SELDOM FREE FROM POISON

Clean Them Out and Backache, Sideache and Bladder Troubles Go.

It's mighty close to the truth to say that there are ten thousand apparently healthy people in America today, who will have Bright's disease, dropsy or some form of kidney disease within two months.

If you have backache, or the slightest suggestion of backache, don't take chances. Get a 50-cent bottle of Thompson's Barosma today and give your kidneys a thorough cleaning. They probably need it. If they don't, Thompson's Barosma is a good tonic anyway and will do you good.

Thompson's Barosma is guaranteed by Graham & Co., Connellsville; S. A. Lowe & Co., Scottdale, to cure kidney or bladder disease, no matter how distressing, or money back. Put up in liquid form, is quickly assimilated and goes directly to the seat of trouble. The very first dose will make your sick kidneys feel better, but bear this in mind when constipation is present. Thompson's Dandelion and Mandrake Pills should also be used. 25c.—Advertisement.

DESSERTS NOW.

Cooking Classes Leave Cereals to Take New Lessons.

Going from one end of the menu to the other—from cereals to desserts—the pupils in the Domestic Science department of the borough schools are being taught recipes for preparing corn starch.

The first week the department took up methods of cooking cereals, oat meal, cream of wheat, etc., and favorable progress was made. Miss Louise Flenche, the instructor, is much encouraged at the interest in the work exhibited by the pupils.

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

West Penn Educational Association Plans to Expand.

At the regular meeting of the West Penn Educational Association held last evening in the laboratory in Greenwood it was decided to hold a membership contest commencing with the present date and ending May 26. The losing side will banquet the winners on the evening of June 6. J. L. Snyder and S. B. Buttermore were appointed captains by President B. E. Getchell.

The object is to promote interest in the association and to increase the membership. An equal number of members were chosen by each captain and were instructed to secure as many new members as possible.

Captain Snyder chose I. J. Moon, F. R. Moon, R. C. Fornwalt, J. F. Fornwalt, G. T. Griffin, C. H. Buttermore, A. A. Smith, R. S. Cooper, H. J. Edmunds and M. R. Armstrong. W. M. Griffiths, C. F. Kalp, J. M. Reamer, B. E. Getchell, P. T. Kamerer, S. B. Moxley, W. D. Detwiler, J. J. Foley, S. H. Sparks and R. M. Gray were chosen by Captain Buttermore. C. F. Kalp of the Connellsville office was received as a new member.

The meeting was well attended. Limitators used on the flat rate system was the subject discussed. The next meeting will be held Monday evening, March 24. There were two visitors.

WARRANT FOR BARTENDER

Chief Hetzel Prefers Charges of Interfering With Officer.

Chief of Police George Hetzel has sworn out a warrant for the arrest of Isaac Francis, who is charged with disorderly conduct and with interfering with an officer. The warrant was secured from Burgess J. L. Evans, and will be served during the course of the day.

Francis is employed as a bartender in a Water street hotel. Saturday night, the Chief alleges, when he went to the hostelry to make an arrest, Francis interfered. It is said he used abusive language.

Francis will be given a hearing before the Burgess on the charge of disorderly conduct, after which he is to be haled before Squire Lawrence Donegan to answer to that of interfering with an officer on duty. The second warrant will be served as soon as the first charges are disposed of.

Chief Hetzel declares that there is entirely too much interference with members of his department, and he is determined to break it up.

BAER IN PITTSBURG

Y. M. C. A. Secretary Attends Meeting to Discuss Association Work.

Secretary E. T. Baer, of the Y. M. C. A., is in Pittsburg today attending a conference of Association workers at the Fort Pitt Hotel. MURDER CASE IS ON Testimony is Submitted Against Four Men Facing Trial.

UNIONTOWN, March 4—Testimony was submitted today against Patsy Pasquale, Tony Bernardo, Sam Panseon and Sam Trunzo, now on trial for the murder of Vanado. After Coroner H. J. Bell described the wounds which caused death, and E. C. Linker, an engineer, submitted blueprints describing the location of the murder, Frank Franksorta, a witness of the shooting who himself received three bullet wounds, took the stand and told of the quarrel which led to the shooting.

TO FREE MONTGOMERY

Former Pittsburg Banker's Sentence Is Commuted.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—William Montgomery, the Pittsburg banker, now serving a 15-year term in the Leavenworth prison for complicity in the wrecking of the Allegheny National Bank of Pittsburg, will leave prison March 28 as a free man.

Grounds pleaded are ill health, and that Montgomery had been sufficiently punished. Saturday Pardon Attorney J. A. Finch of the Department of Justice, favorably recommended clemency to Attorney General G. W. Wickersham, and the latter official sent the recommendation to the President with his approval, favorable action followed.

APPROACHING BALDNESS

May be Checked by Using Herpicide.

The above expression is one which is used frequently in connection with hair preparations. Just exactly what is meant by it in each instance is a question. Baldness is not a disease and hence, does not permit of a cure. It is a result invariably to be traced to the dandruff germ and if the condition has become chronic, that is, if there is complete atrophy of the hair follicles, a "cure" is absolutely impossible.

Approaching baldness, seen in falling hair, may always be checked and if the hair follicles are not atrophied the hair may be induced again to grow.

This is accomplished by regular applications of Newbro's Herpicide which cleanses the scalp and kills the dandruff germ. The destruction of the germ does away with the accumulations of scarf skin and thus eliminates the most common enemy to beautiful hair.

Soft, glossy, fluffy hair cannot grow on a scalp infested with dandruff any more than a delicate plant can grow on an ash heap. The scalp must be kept clean and free from dandruff. The best remedy for doing this is Newbro's Herpicide which receives the highest endorsements from professional men, the stage and the best people everywhere.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1.00 sizes is sold by all dealers who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications obtained at all first-class barber shops and hair dressing parlors.

GOLD DUST does more than clean

Gold Dust sterilizes and leaves your kitchen things sanitarily safe. The ordinary soap-washed utensil is not fit to eat from, because soap does not cleanse as thoroughly as it should—does not kill germs of decay which are bound to lurk in oft-used utensils.

Gold Dust does most of the cleaning without your assistance, and does it, too, in a quicker and more thorough manner than will soap or other cleansers.

Gold Dust makes pot and pan spick and span.

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

WHEN in former years it became necessary in the course of human events for the American people to install into office a new president the keynote of the occasion was: "On with the dance! Let joy be unconfined." This year it's different. They have performed a surgical operation on the inauguration, with Dr. Wilson at the butt end of the scalpel, and have excised the dance. When the simple ceremonies of the inauguration are completed the visitors will be told: "Back to your homes. There'll be no dance tonight."

But don't hurry away yet with the idea that there'll be no inauguration worth speaking of, that Washington will wear its wonted aspect on March 4, 1913. It won't. The cutting out of the inaugural ball and the reception by the new president and his family will diminish the picturesque features of the inauguration, but it won't kill the ceremony by any means.

Pennsylvania avenue still stretches its mile and a quarter long from the capitol to the White House, affording one of the finest streets in the world to march on, and unless the weather is very severe indeed the broad plaza in front of the east entrance to the capitol will be jammed to hear Woodrow Wilson take the oath and deliver his inaugural address. Our Democratic brethren and sisters are not going to let a little thing like the absence of the ball and the reception mar the joy they feel in helping to put a Democratic president into the White House after twenty years of enforced abstinence from such pleasure.

The Inaugural Oath.

If it isn't sacrilegious to say so, the donkey will bray very loudly when he sees Woodrow Wilson mount the stand, bow his head in reverence before the Bible held in the hand of Chief Justice White and repeat the solemn words of the inaugural oath:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of president of the United States and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States." If Mr. Wilson likes, he may substitute the word "affirm" for the word "swear." The people of the United States hold that if a man is big enough to be elected to the high and mighty office of president of the world's biggest republic he's good enough to take office without swearing to his intentions if he prefers promising to do so.

Perhaps this is as good a place as any to call attention to the fact that at least once on inauguration day the incoming vice president takes the center of the stage and shoves the president out of the limelight. That is due to the fact that the vice president takes the oath first. You see, presidents come and go, but the United States senate goes on forever, being a continuing body, unlike the house of representatives. So there must be someone to administer the oath of office to the incoming senators, who take their seats on March 4.

Naturally the man to administer the oath is the vice president of the United States, who is to preside over their sessions. So before proceeding to the real business of the day they swear in the new vice president. Whether he would become president if the new president elect—not yet president—should drop dead before taking his own oath is a theoretical question that may be left to those interested in such matters. Absit omen, as the Romans said—let's hope it never happens.

The inaugural ball and reception will be eliminated this year at the express wish of Mr. Wilson, who objected to the expense of closing up for two weeks the pension office, the only building in Washington with an open hall big enough to house the dancers. The cost of the inaugural ball to the government has been estimated as high as $100,000, and Mr. Wilson asserted that it was a needless expenditure.

The inaugural reception at the White House, heretofore deemed also an indispensable feature of inauguration evening, has been abandoned on the ground that the president and his family, wearied by a day of excitement and strain, should not be required to stand in line and receive thousands of visitors.

Some Ceremonial Features.

That leaves, as has been said, the big parade, the taking of the oath and the delivery of the inaugural address as the main features of the show for the multitude. Of course for the insiders, those who are in office or are favored by connection with placeholders, the inside features of the inauguration in the capitol are replete with interest. They are the arrival of the outgoing and incoming president at the capitol from the White House, the scene in the senate chamber when the vice president and the new senators assume their obligations, and the procession through the rotunda under the wonderful dome of the capitol to the east portico where the ceremonies are concluded by the delivery of the address by the president.

Of course there is a vast deal of ceremonial and red tape and formality, such as the entry into the senate chamber of the dignified, stately members of the supreme court, the arrival of the diplomatic corps in brilliant, full court dress and the marshaling of the procession of officials by the marshal of the United States supreme court and the marshal of the District of Columbia. These are observances that have come down to the present generation of Americans from the days of Washington and Adams and that must be followed now lest the man who remembers the inauguration of Buchanan be shocked.

It's a toss up whether the parade will be a success. It all depends on the weather. It's mighty hard to get up enthusiasm when one is chilled through from long waiting in the stand on Pennsylvania avenue in case the sun averts his face from the inauguration of a president. Who does not remember March 4, 1909, when every variety of execrable weather completely spoiled the outdoor features of President Taft's inauguration?

But if it should prove one of the bright, crisp sunshiny March days with which Washington is blessed sometimes thousands of soldiers, sailors, cadets, midshipmen, militiamen and civilians will march up Pennsylvania avenue for the honor of Uncle Sam and the glorification of Woodrow Wilson. They will be forming while the indoor ceremonial is taking place, and they will march to the White House to be reviewed by the president, the vice president and their guests.

There, we've reached almost the end of our space and we've said nothing about the main feature of the big show—the suffragist parade that will take place on March 3, provided Boreas is enough of a suffragist to smile then. But, of course, all the world knows already that on the day before inauguration day the women who want to vote will have a parade of their own on Pennsylvania avenue—that is, they will have it if the naughty college boys do not carry out their threat to loose mice and rats along the route of the procession. If they do, there'll be no parade. There'll be a stampede.

"Let every man look out for himself, let every generation look out for itself," while we reared giant machinery which made it impossible that any but those who stood at the levers of control should have a chance to look out for themselves. We had not forgotten our morals. We remembered well enough that we had set up a policy which was meant to serve the humblest as well as the most powerful, with an eye single to the standards of justice and fair play, and remembered it with pride. But we were very heedless and in a hurry to be great.

We have come now to the sober second thought. The scales of heedlessness have fallen from our eyes. We have made up our minds to square every process of our national life again with the standards we so proudly set up at the beginning and have always carried at our hearts. Our work is a work of restoration.

We have itemized with some degree of particularity the things that ought to be altered and here are some of the chief items: A tariff which cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world, violates the just principles of taxation, and makes the government a facile instrument in the hands of private interests; a banking and currency system based upon the necessity of the government to sell its bonds fifty years ago and perfectly adapted to concentrating cash and restricting credits; an industrial system which, take it on all sides, financial as well as administrative, holds capital in leading strings, restricts the liberties and limits the opportunities of labor, and exploits without renewing or conserving the natural resources of the country; a body of agricultural activities never yet given the efficiency of great business undertakings or served as it should be through the instrumentality of science taken directly to the farm, or afforded the facilities of credit best suited to its practical needs; watercourses undeveloped, waste places unreclaimed, forests untended, fast disappearing without plan or prospect of renewal, unregarded waste heaps at every mine. We have studied as perhaps no other nation has the most effective means of production, but we have not studied cost or economy as we should either as organizers of industry as statesmen, or as individuals.

Nor have we studied and perfected the means by which government may be put at the service of humanity, in safeguarding the health of the nation, the health of its men and its women and its children, as well as their rights in the struggle for existence. This is no sentimental duty. The firm basis of government is justice, not pity. These are matters of justice. There can be no equality or opportunity. The first essential of justice in the body politic, if men and women and children be not shielded in their lives, their very vitality, from the consequences of great industrial and social processes which they cannot alter, control or singly cope with. Society must see to it that it does not itself crush or weaken or damage its own constituent parts. The first duty of law is to keep sound the society it serves. Sanitary laws, pure food laws, and laws determining conditions of labor which individuals are powerless to determine for themselves are intimate parts of the very business of justice and legal efficiency.

These are some of the things we ought to do, and not leave the others undone, the old-fashioned, never-to-be-neglected, fundamental safeguarding of property and of individual right. This is the high enterprise of the new day; to lift everything that concerns our life as a nation to the light that shines from the hearthfire of every man's conscience and vision of the right. It is inconceivable that we should do this as partisans; it is inconceivable we should do it in ignorance of the facts as they are or in blind haste. We shall restore, not destroy. We shall deal with our economic system as it is and as it may be modified, not as it might be if we had a clean sheet of paper to write upon; and step by step we shall make it what it should be, in the spirit of those who question their own wisdom and seek counsel and knowledge, not shallow self-satisfaction or the excitement of excursions whither they cannot tell. Justice, and only justice, shall always be our motto.

And yet it will be no cool process of mere science. The nation has been deeply stirred, stirred by a solemn passion, stirred by the knowledge of wrong, of ideals lost, of government too often debauched and made an instrument of evil. The feelings with which we face this new age of right and opportunity sweep across our heart-strings like some air out of God's own presence, where justice and mercy are reconciled and the judge and the brother are one. We know our task to be no mere task of politics but a task which shall search us through and through, whether we be able to understand our time and the need of our people, whether we be indeed their spokesmen and interpreters, whether we have the pure heart to comprehend and the rectified will to choose our high course of action.

This is not a day of triumph; it is a day of dedication. Here muster, not the forces of party, but the forces of humanity. Men's hearts wait upon us; men's lives hang in the balance; men's hopes call upon us to say what we will do. Who shall live up to the great trust? Who dares fail to try? I summon all honest men, all patriotic, all forward-looking men, to my side. God helping me, I will not fail them, if they will but counsel and sustain me!

custom decrees that the outgoing President shall regard every particle of the demonstration as given his successor, and shall not even appear to note it. Nevertheless, the Taft smile, as of old, was in evidence as he heard Democratic exuberance but ill-concealed in the shouts of triumph with which they acclaimed a President of their faith.

Behind carriages carrying President Wilson and Vice President Marshall came vehicles carrying Mrs. Wilson and the three Wilson daughters. Following that of the Wilson family was the Marshall family. Then came the automobiles and carriages of other distinguished participants.

Slowly the processional to the White House began. The carriages proceded at a walk, to afford a good view of the President to the crowds in the stands adn windows. Soldiers stood at "attention" all along the avenue, spaced every few feet, in front of tautly stretched ropes holding back the sidewalk crowds.

Green and white was the official color scheme of the decorations. Lining the streets were tall pennants of these colors, their staffs supporting festoons of electric bulbs for the illuminations tonight.

When the march from the Peace Monument began a salvo of 101 guns—the national salute—was fired by a battery of artillery on the White House ellipse. It was followed by the Presidential salute of 21 guns and the Vice Presidential salute of 15 guns.

The post of honor in the parade was given the cadets battalion from West Point Military Academy. Their band of 50 pieces headed the 500 grey-coated, black-plumed cadets, with stiffly-starched white sashes—the personification of military "spick and span" neatness. A fluttering of feminine hearts and shrill cheers and loud hand clapping from feminine throats and hands marked the progress of the West Pointers.

Following the cadets were troops and bands of infantry.

By the time President Wilson reached the White House the avenue was filled with swarms of blue-coated soldiers and sailors, artillery troops and cavalry.

While the Presidential and official carriages flowed through the "Court of Honor" and into the White House grounds to deliver their occupants for the formal luncheon to the new executives, the parade was halted at the north side of the Treasury Department building, at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

When President Wilson, at 2:45, ascended into the Presidential reviewing stand in front of the White House the parade was started again.

"Hail to the Chief" were the strains of the opening march, played by the famous Marine band—the "President's own." Grand Marshal Wood and his staff first passed the President's box, with swords in salute and "eyes left" to view the new Commander-in-Chief. The music of the West Pointers swelled louder as the cadet battalion approached, with their guns at "port" and their "eyes to the left."

Every member of the military branches in line "presented arms" as they passed through the "Court of Honor" and under the eyes of the new President and his staff.

By careful advance orders use of "Hail to the Chief" played by almost every band in past inaugurals upon passing the President, was limited today to the Marine Band. "Maryland, My Maryland," was played by the Fifth Regiment Band of the Maryland militia; "Tammany" by the New York bands, and other distinctive State airs, including some rag time, furnished a musical medley.

NEW VICE PRESIDENT ASSUMES HIS OFFICE.

For the first time in many months, the United States today possessed a Vice President. When Thomas R. Marshall, of Indiana, took the oath today in the Senate chamber, the vacancy in that office caused by the death last year of former Vice President Sherman was filled.

As the "second in command" Vice President Marshall today shared the nation's plaudits only with President Wilson. Today he exchanged the title of governor for that of Vice President. Incidentally he became the presiding officer of the new Senate, filled lately by acting Presidents pro tem.

Resolutions of Respect.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT AND condolence on the death of James C. Trimble, by the Men's Bible Class of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Scottdale, Pa., adopted at their regular meeting, Sunday, March 2, 1913.

WHEREAS, in view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and brother, James C. Trimble, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst we mourn for one who was, in every way, worthy of our respect and regard.

RESOLVED, That we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

RESOLVED, That this heartfelt testimonial of our sympathy and our sorrow be forwarded to the family of our departed brother by the committee and these Resolutions of Respect and Condolence be published in the leading Periodicals of our Community.

MUSTEROLE

No Plaster! No Blister!

Everybody knows how the good old-fashioned mustard plaster relieves a cold, an ache or a pain.

Your mother and your grandmother always applied it. The plaster burned awfully, but it surely brought relief.

MUSTEROLE is the same remedy without the plaster and without the blister.

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment, made with the oil of mustard.

You don't have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub MUSTEROLE on the spot where the pain is—rub it on briskly—and the pain is gone!

Not a blister is left, even on tender skin! Instead it has a delicious, comforting effect.

There is nothing like MUSTEROLE for Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Tonsilitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Headache, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Colds of the chest (it prevents pneumonia). Millions of jars of MUSTEROLE are sold annually. It is a staple in the large hospitals. Doctors and nurses use it and recommend it to patients. Ask your doctor.

At your druggist's, in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

If your druggist cannot supply you send 25c or 50c to the Musterole Company, Cleveland, O., and we will mail you a jar, postpaid. Doctors Tell How Musterole Relieves.

Dr. J. P. Frey, Chicago, Ill.—"I prescribe your Musterole every day. Use it in all cases of alveolar asbestos and inflammation."

Dr. Abbott T. Hutchinson, New York, N. Y.—"I have prescribed many times your Musterole."

THE WILSON POLICY.

With the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson as President, the Government of the United States passes today from Republican to Democratic hands, and with it passes a great responsibility.

Republicans may be excused from doubting the wisdom of certain Democratic policies which are proposed to be applied to public administration for the betterment of the public welfare, but we think we speak for every sincere Republican and patriotic citizen when we say that whatever good the administration of President Wilson accomplishes will be cheerfully acknowledged and heartily approved. Democratic rule is not the result of deliberate and decisive public judgment, but Republicans accept it as the fortune of war, and are prepared to abide by it in all that is good and with it in everything else.

The new administration has some new political ideas which in their development will be watched with no little interest. The scheme of government is not to be overturned, but with William Jennings Bryan as Premier and Director it is reasonable to look for some unusual if not startling innovations.

President Wilson has already announced that he intends to visit Congress every day and supervise the work of legislation; and he has informed Vice President Marshall that his presence will be desired at all Cabinet meetings, where he is to consider himself a member ex officio of the Chief Magistrate's Board of Strategy.

This Progressive movement outprogresses the late lamented President Roosevelt's advancements in this direction. Previous to the belligerent Bull Moose Colonel's occupancy of the White House, the Presidents of the United States never forgot that, under the Constitution and the laws and customs of the country, the three separate and distinct branches of the Government were and ought to be at all times independent in thought and action, and never subject to the cajolery or duress of each other.

But Roosevelt did not hesitate to command the attendance of Senators and Representatives at the White House for the purpose of urging the passage of pet legislation, nor did he scruple to draft such legislation and demand its passage, unmindful of the fact that the duty of the President is to approve or disapprove legislation but never to originate it.

President Wilson proposes to go much further. He will attend the sessions of Congress in person and urge the passage of his measures on the legislative floors. Other people who do this are called lobbyists and many of them have to operate in the corridor. The average lobbyist has something substantial to offer in return for support, but Presidential patronage is very attractive to statesmen. Roosevelt made it so.

Is the Wilson policy to be one of coercion?

B. & O. BETTERMENTS.

The announcement that the Baltimore & Ohio will spend large sums in betterments does not mean that this great railway system is bent and broken to such an extent that radical rehabilitation is necessary; it is, in fact, modern and well maintained, but like all large railways and great enterprises it must keep up with the times and be ready to meet all reasonable demands made upon it. Its business is constantly growing and its facilities must keep pace therewith.

Some railroad expenditures seem extravagant to inexperienced observers. In the past decade, for example, the Pennsylvania and the New York Central systems have spent a nation's ransom in building new and magnificent passenger stations in New York, and in constructing tunnels under the bed of the river for the purpose of doing away with the inconvenience and delay of ferrying over the water. These improvements were demanded by the public, but they were urged by a consideration even more moving, namely, economical operation. The tunnels will eventually pay their cost out of the reduced cost of train movement. Tugs and ferry boats and lighters are slow and expensive.

A liberal portion of the Baltimore & Ohio appropriations will be spent for enlarging the transportation facilities of the Pittsburg and the Connellsville divisions in order to successfully handle the increased freight traffic now going over them. This is one of the investments which all intelligent railroad managers like to make. There is never any doubt of its wisdom.

Most railroad betterments, in fact, mean better business.

The News tells us that the commissions of a number of Fayette county postmasters of prominence have several years to run and that these postmasters "will probably not be disturbed except for cause." We are not sure about this in view of the fact that Democratic influence conspired to refuse confirmation of some 2,000 similar appointments by President Taft. The Democrats were not fair in these cases and they will not be in others. They want the offices and they are not particular how they get them.

In the Republican calendar this is March forth.

After having set the editor of The Courier up as a scarecrow candidate for postmaster, The News got frightened at its own invention. The Courier has no candidate for postmaster, but if The News insists upon it perhaps we might find one who would give The News and its slate no end of trouble.

The Honorable A. Mitchell Palmer and the Honorable George W. Guthrie, Democratic Consuls, are holding a meeting in Washington for the purpose of making the Democratic legislative program for Harrisburg and dividing the Presidential patronage of Pennsylvania. Their unselfish action in assuming these burdens should be properly appreciated by the free, untrammeled and independent Democracy of the Keystone State.

Washington specials have been common railroad traffic during the past couple of days.

It was hardly necessary for the editor of the Connellsville News to announce editorially, and to some extent publicly, that he is not a candidate for the Connellsville postoffice. Everybody, including the editor, knows it wouldn't be any use. There are too many near-proprietors after the job. Besides, the word has been handed out in Fayette county that, in the distribution of the loaves and fishes, no carpet-baggers need apply.

The net results of the Suffragette parade in Washington are not calculated to make a manly man think a womanly woman should engage in politics or political demonstrations.

President Wilson's secrecy regarding the personnel of his Cabinet served no purpose better than to make the newspapers all the trouble possible.

The B. & O.'s Connellsville fire department is of first efficiency probably because its aim is efficiency first.

The report that Senator Penrose will carry his campaign into the back townships is an unconfirmed Progressive statement, but if it proves to be true perhaps it will not be such a joke after all.

The Suffragette hikers have demonstrated the fact that it sometimes requires legs to get to the limelight. Most of the hikers wouldn't get far on their faces.

The statesmanship that holds appropriation bills involving $700,000,000 back until the very last day of the session may be cautious, but most people will call it incompetent.

Postmaster Kurtz proposes that the new postoffice building shall have a proper horticultural setting.

The fumigating business has had a boom in and around Connellsville this winter.

The Connellsville postal business is growing in order to size up with its new quarters.

The B. & O. will slip around Dawson by the back way where there's more room to do the slipping.

The Power of the Press as an Educator

By John P. Fallon

A great man declared that no hours of his day were better employed or more enjoyable than those which brought him in closer touch with people in all walks of life.

Of course, he referred to the hours spent in reading the daily newspaper. The newspaper brings you in touch with people the world over and with the affairs of every country.

Read your newspaper carefully tonight and every night. Discuss its varied subjects at the table, in the evening, or whenever the occasion presents itself. The daily newspaper, with its many excellent features, affords a splendid post-graduate course for grown-ups and gives the children more general information in one evening than they are apt to learn at school in many days.

It will also pay you to read the advertisements closely and constantly every day, for they contain valuable information of new goods and opportunities to economize.

HELPING FATHER

President Wilson proposes that Vice-President Marshall attend cabinet meetings and play a larger part generally in the government than has any of his predecessors.

SCOTTDALE TOWN COUNCIL HOLDS THEIR MEETING

John D. Kelly's Postponed Paving Appeal Case is Brought Up.

TAX MILLAGE FOR YEAR IS SET

Complaints Being Made About Waste Paper Boxes; More Lights are Wanted; Walnut Avenue Brick Matter Settled; Garbage Furnace Up.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, March 3.—The meeting of Town Council brought forth only a quorum last evening, President W. L. Shaffer, M. L. Hammers, William Butler, O. M. Jarrett, W. W. Hines, H. G. Mertz and Roy Baker being present. Accounted for absent ones were J. E. Tinstman who is ill; J. Frank Hardy who is in Washington helping to make music for the inauguration, and A. E. Collins who was at the mill. Unaccounted for were H. J. Springer and W. T. Massey.

John D. Kelly who has an appeal in court against the viewers' report on the paving of Spring street was present, and was represented by W. L. Kelly. The latter said that the report is disputed and that he would like to have Council take the matter up with a view of settling out of court, as he claimed the street had been raised, the earth piled against his brother's house, the woodwork rotting and his property damaged. He said that he would rather settle out of court, as the viewers' schedule was an unfair one. He charged one of the viewers of "having no sense at all," and being unable to be fair and that he should have awarded damages.

Mr. Mertz said he felt that the viewers' report should be allowed to stand and Mr. Hines, coinciding with this, said he thought there was no use in having viewers if the Council should set their findings aside. He added that if any damages had been assessed against the Borough it would have to pay.

Mr. Kelly returned to the subject and charged Mr. Mertz with being unfair and that his brother had secured bids for doing the work but that it would be very costly to him, and this proved a damage claim.

Borough Attorney F. B. Folk said in reply to an inquiry that it was perhaps not exactly his place to say it but that the case had been postponed several times at Mr. Kelly's motion, and that he had asked the latter to come before Council promptly and lay the matter before that body, but that this had been disregarded. W. L. Kelly's answer to this was that they had been trying to get bids from contractors and trying to get engineers to make a survey but had been put off each time, so that they had not been in any position to confer with Council.

The President appointed Messrs Butler, Hines and Mertz to confer with Mr. Kelly in view of a settlement, and at the close of the meeting Secretary F. M. Newcomer was instructed to notify Mr. Kelly to appear before the committee on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp.

E. E. Grant of the Morgantown Brick Company, appeared and said they are willing to do anything reasonable to fix up Walnut avenue, where the street is still closed the brick being unsatisfactory. He offered to replace all defective brick, and ship in extra ones if needed. The bond of $2,000 of a surety company was accepted for five years and the company will execute its own bond for the second five year term and make the street right.

The Street Commissioner was instructed to notify the Loucks interests to replace flag stones removed at the Old Orchard bakery building where dirt was being hauled over the sidewalk, and the commissioner was also notified to see that the sidewalk in front of the Brinker and Painter properties be repaired. Mr. Butler told of a vacuum and baby falling there a few days ago.

Mr. Hines for the Light Committee told of requests for lights at Broadway and Fifth avenue, Chestnut street and Arthur avenue, Delaware and Arthur avenues, and Meyer and Garfield avenue. The committee will investigate.

The millage for the year was placed by the Finance Committee at 10 mills the same as last year, but the fund divisions were not set. C. K. Booher was appointed to make up the duplicate for $30.

Complaints have already been made about the waste paper cans, their location, their color, their use, and a few other things. Some people, it was said, are worrying already that flies will congregate at the cans. Mr. Butler said the can at Broadway where the can stands near a U. S. mail box might be moved, for fear some woman thinking she was using the parcel post might dump a baby into the waste receptacle and President Shaffer told of overhearing two milkmen gravely debating that the box at the postoffice was for the parcel post.

However, the general opinion was that the cans are a success, although it may require a few arrests to show some people the purpose of the cans. Health Officer P. P. Goshorn said he was present on the instructions of the Board of Health to insist that Council find some way of disposing of the garbage. He said there is nothing but a cry of "Where shall we put it?" ascends wherever he makes his rounds. The location for garbage has not yet been found.

The receipts for the month were reported as follows:

Estate of Mary M. Hesse, Walnut avenue grading	$ 23.48
Lawrence Keister, Loucks avenue grading	23.06
Estate of James H. Gordon, ourts avenue paving	152.56
W. A. White, Fourth avenue paving	152 56
C. D. & P. Tel. Co., pole tax 1913	165.60
Broadway Bank, interest on borough funds	230.72
R. F. Lillis, Burgess	91.25
W. E. Henry, Weighmaster	18.00

The Finance Committee reported adversely on the request of a citizen seeking to be allowed to give a note for street paving instead of having a lien filed against the property, the committee believing that taking a note would be the establishment of an unwise precedent. The committee said that it felt implicit confidence in the one making the request, but could not consider the granting of it wise.

In reply to a request for a report on the Police Committee, Chairman Butler said: "We have no report, everything is lively."

The Council decided to pay Pietro Brothers the balance of the estimate on Walnut avenue, $1,333.51.

A HAPPY, LAUGHING CHILD IN FEW HOURS

If Cross, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Sick, Give "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! Don't scold your cross, peevish child! Look at the tongue! See if it is white, yellow and coated! If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little waste clogged bowels without griping, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.—Advertisement.

I suffered with bearing down pains, headache, was irregular and felt blue and depressed all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to gain in a short time and I am a well woman today. I am on my feet from early morning until late at night running a boarding house and do all my own work. I hope that many suffering women will try your medicine. It makes happier wives and mothers."—Mrs. ANNA HANSEN, Esmond, Rhode Island.

ALVA A. SNYDER

Victim of Lake Erie Wreck Was Well Known Here.

Alva A. Snyder who was killed in the wreck on the Lake Erie railroad at Layton, Feb 11, was well and favorably know in Connellsville where he had many friends. He served in the Spanish-American War, Company D, Tenth Regiment, and was wounded in the battle of Malate, Philippine Islands.

He was a young man of most generous impulses and many are the stories told by his friends, among whom he was familiarly known as "Jack," of the little acts of kindness performed where he could in any way relieve suffering, which always touched his warm sympathetic heart. He was a young man of splendid physique and fine personal appearance and being of a genial nature, together with his wide reading and fine conversational powers, he had hosts of friends among whom he will be sadly missed.

His tender devotion to his mother and sisters, and his love for his home were well known among those who knew him intimately, and the sorrowing family have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. The interment was made in Dickerson Run Cemetery with military honors, where just a few hours before the body of his friend, Conductor Ernest Burton, who met death with him, had been laid to rest.

He is survived by his mother and the following brothers and sisters: George W. Snyder of Uniontown, formerly master mechanic for W. J. Rainey; Miss Margaret Snyder, a teacher in the Uniontown schools; Mrs. E. M. Dewalt, Mrs W. P. Bradman, of Uniontown; Mrs. Z. T. Silvis and Miss Maude L. Snyder, both of Greensburg, the latter a teacher in the schools of that city, Mrs. E. J. Emery, Mrs Mahlon Stantz, Frank Snyder of East Liberty and Miss Minnie Snyder at home.

SMITHFIELD.

SMITHFIELD, March 4.—Mr. and Mrs. H. O'Neil were out of town from Saturday morning to Sunday evening calling on relatives at Point Marion and Grantens Ferry on the Monongahela.

It is not wise to trust to the vagaries of March weather and leave your home for a day without taking an overcoat, as the writer learned to his discomfort and cost on last Saturday when he left home in balmy spring like weather and had to borrow an overcoat to return the next day when the mercury was hovering around the zero mark. We returned the overcoat the next day by parcel post, but that don't compensate the gentleman from whom we borrowed the coat for the inconvenience caused him nor for the cuss words of the carrier that was compelled to deliver the package to the owner.

J. K. Rader was attending court as a witness, Monday.

In addition to measles, there are mumps, whooping cough and diphtheria in the borough. Benjamin Moser's house on Liberty street has a card on it for the mumps and Thomas Kingans on High House street has a case of diphtheria.

Home Remedy for Eczema

From our experience as druggists in this community, we can recommend, as an absolutely reliable remedy for skin diseases, the D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema, made in the D.D.D. Laboratories in Chicago. This is an ideal home remedy for it has the advantages of being a convenient wash, easy to apply and positively harmless to the most tender skin. D.D.D. gives instant relief from the irritating itch, it penetrates the pores and reaches the root of the disease immediately. Just a 50c bottle will convince you of this.

We advise every skin sufferer to have D.D.D. Prescription always on hand. Of course all druggists sell it—go to them if you can't come to us—but don't accept a big profit substitute.

However, if you come to our store, we have so much confidence in this mild, antiseptic wash that we will guarantee the first full-size bottle to do as we say. If not, pay nothing. Let us also tell you about D.D.D. soap.

WARNING
Since its introduction into the United States, the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations. Look out for them, get the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package.
Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.
It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.
Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.
And remember that badness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.
Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing; not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using Parisian Sage. 50 cents a large bottle at A. A. Clarke's and druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

URI-STOP WILL CURE
Don't Wait For Children to Outgrow the Trouble—Start Them Taking Uri-Stop Today.
Bed wetting is a disease and should be given prompt attention. The wonderful success realized by Uri-Stop seems little short of marvelous and many cures have been effected in Connellsville. Bed wetting is not a local trouble alone, but is a disease embracing the entire urinary system as well as the bladder and kidneys. Uri-Stop is put up in tablet form, pure and harmless. No irritation or harmful action. The effected parts are toned up, invigorating and restored to their normal condition. Can be taken by the most delicate child. Mail orders solicited. Price $1.00.
The Boettger Chem. Co., Peoria, Ill., are so confident of the curative properties of Uri-Stop that they have authorized their local agent, A. A. Clarke, to refund your money if you are not benefitted after a careful trial.—Advertisement.

far as she is concerned. Yet the court does not intend by these words to in any manner intimate what will be her ultimate decision. "There!" she exclaimed triumphantly. "What do you think of that? And I learned it all from Clay."

"Speaking of the devil—" broke in March with a disgusted movement of his hand. She looked up quickly. A couple of hundred yards away and slowly approaching them upon his horse was the omnipresent Tolliver himself. Clean cut and erect in his saddle, he presented as good a figure upon a horse as one often sees, and March was fully cognizant of the fact that Doris was by no means blind to such things. As for the girl, she appeared delighted at his coming and promptly waved her hand in greeting, while the newcomer touching his hat and slightly quickening his speed dismounted before them with a bow to her and a nod to her escort.

"Both unexpected and most agreeable," he smiled. She motioned him to seat upon an adjoining rock.

"So say we all. And you did not leave the city after all your threats and attempts to frighten me. What happy chance led you this way?"

"I have no idea unless the secret wish which I was cherishing mystically guided my steed's feet upon the path I was longing to pursue. However, I assure you I had no idea of intruding—" She laughed lightly.

"As if there could be such a thing. We were merely talking—let me see, what were we talking about?" she challenged with a taunting glance at March who sat unhappily. He wrinkled his brow.

"A suppositious, highly involved metaphysical and legal tangle I believe. Miss Fulton was spouting quite learnedly." Tolliver's eyes, unfathomable and always peculiar looking to March, rested upon his face steadily.

"Miss Fulton has the mental qualifications to become a very good lawyer," he returned slowly. "While I was ill at her home I sometimes used to alternate law with Kipling. I found her very apt. It was one of my greatest sources of enjoyment during those painful, happy hours." He turned to the girl. "But really I am especially fortunate to meet you here when I had quite given up hope of seeing you again soon. I called up your home this morning only to learn that you had gone riding—in what direction no one knew. I wished to see you again before I leave, which may be at any time."

"And to where do you go?" Tolliver's face clouded thoughtfully.

"To be absolutely honest with you, I do not know."

"And when do you expect to start?"

"Again I do not know—except that I may be summoned at any time." He saw the mystification upon her face and hastily assumed a lighter vein. "I have no desire to speak in parables, and assure you that I desire to conceal nothing. I am as completely in the dark as are yourselves, yet I know that I am going away. I will not attempt to enlighten you further at this time, as it would involve a somewhat lengthy and involved explanation which I am not at all sure that you would grasp. It is enough to say that I have been notified and am holding myself in readiness."

"And this notice—had you been expecting it?" she inquired, manifestly little pleased at the mystery of his manner. He negatived.

"No. It came to me a couple of days ago as lightning out of a clear sky. It may be because of business reasons, it may be for any other cause, it may be today or a week from now, it may be with great suddenness or I may have a short notice—those are things I know no more about than do you. I simply know that I have been notified and must hold myself in readiness to obey." He saw March's thin smile of incredulity and gave him a queer look in return.

"I know it sounds as though I were wandering mentally, yet you will find out that it is all true," he added coldly. He arose and took a step towards his horse, addressing himself solely to Doris. "And now I am going to leave you for today, hoping that I may see you again before I depart upon the longer trip of which I have just spoken." The girl springing to her feet stepped close before him.

"Ride back with us," she urged.

He shook his head, speaking to her rapidly and in a voice too low for Alan to hear his words. "No, this afternoon belongs to you two. But I shall endeavor to make an opportunity to at least say goodby to you before I leave. And always remember—" her lids dropped before the light she saw burning in his eyes—"what I told you the other day, Doris—that all that I possess, even to my life itself, is ever at your service." The snort of his horse caused him to wheel just as that animal, raising its head, started at a brisk trot down the canyon with the bridle reins trailing. Much to the astonishment of the girl and Alan their own well broken horses, which theretofore had been standing quietly, now faced about and started in the other's tracks, heads and ears erect.

And then from behind them there arose a scream so shrill, so penetrating, so awful in its horror that their blood curdled within them and their hearts seemed to stop at its first wild note. They spun upon their heels with every nerve bristling. "My God," gasped Clay, reeling as though from a fierce blow in the face, while March, sickened to the very core of his soul by what he saw, felt a deathly faintness sweep over him. Doris, a hundred yards away from them and to all appearances already unconscious from terror and shock, was being lifted bodily from the earth by the Flying Man. Again the horses were stampeding down the canyon with terrified snortings.

With an inarticulate cry of horror March jerked his revolver from his pocket and went leaping backward towards her. Tolliver racing by his side with weapon in hand. But even as they made their first step the winged one, leaping into the air as lightly as a tiger who bears but a fawn leaps a jungle deadfall, he smote the air with his tremendous wings. Upward he forged with swift beatings, upward and away, shielding himself perfectly from the drawn weapons of those below by the form of the one he bore, peering malevolently over the top of her head with his enormous insect like eyes at those who were raging below like men bereft of their reason. With brain reeling as though he would go mad March glanced at Tolliver. His rival's face was distorted almost beyond the semblance of a human beings, his eyes filled with the dull glare of stark madness, his teeth bared like a wounded panther's, his big revolver already raised for the shot which even though it missed the girl and pierced the forehead of the one who bore her must bring her also crashing down upon the rocks to certain mutilation and death. With the quickness of thought he struck the weapon from the other's hand and sent it ringing upon the stones. Without pausing to see what his erstwhile rival's next move would be he went dashing up the canyon in wild pursuit, his eyes fastened upon those above, the horror of one who faces the rock freezing him to his very vitals.

Doris Was Being Lifted Bodily From the Earth by the Flying Man.

CHAPTER XI.

In the Clutch.

During the first five minutes of his frenzy Alan, little better than an insane man, ran frantically along the gently rising and fairly level floor of the gulch, striving with every nerve and muscle to keep pace with the creature above, calling Doris by name, shouting hoarsely at her captor, who still shielding himself behind the other, gazed silently back at him from over the top of her head as he flapped himself further and further into the distance in a half backwards, half sidewise flight. Then with the gradual return of reason as his wind began to desert him he realized the utter futility of so exhausting himself that he could no longer pursue, and with an effort fought himself back to self-control and logical reasoning. He glanced back. Tolliver, staring fixedly upward, was just coming up on a panting run and would have passed him without speaking or slackening his pace had not March seized him as he was going by. The look upon Clay's face caused another shiver to vibrate down Alan's spine. "Tolliver!" he cried sharply.

"Let me go. Release me, damn you," he yelled as he raised his revolver as if about the strike the other down. Alan shook him fiercely.

"Listen to me," he commanded. "If after I have spoken you still insist upon senselessly exhausting yourself you may do so. But harken to what I say first." Hesitating, seeming to but half comprehend what the other was saying Clay lowered his weapon and side by side they jogged along. March spoke as best he could between breaths.

"It is unspeakably horrible, but we must keep our senses if we would do our best. And we must work together and coolly if we would hope to save her. We must keep on as rapidly as we can without exhausting ourselves, and manage somehow to keep him in sight. He is pretty heavily burdened and I don't believe he can go far without stopping to rest. We must not run ourselves into the blind staggers at the outset, for once out of our sight we would stand little chance of finding him again. Neither would it do any good for one of us to go back for help, for all the aeroplanes are away. What is to be done must be done by us. And may the good Lord give us strength." Tolliver not answering and making no sign that he had heard was keeping about a yard in advance.

They went scrambling up a sharp incline and arrived at the top breathing sharply. Despite their efforts they had lost sight of the creature for a few moments during the climb, but as they now mounted the crest they caught sight of him once more seated upon a cleft in the rock wall perhaps a quarter of a mile ahead, the girl closely clasped in his arms and to all appearances still unconscious. For the first time since her scream had horrified him March was conscious of a gleam of hope. The girl's weight was a heavy handicap for the flying one, and he would of necessity have to make more and more frequent stops as he proceeded. With Clay to help him it might be that they could get the other in such a position that he could not shield himself from both at the same time, and then all might be well after all. Both himself and his companion were good pistol shots, and given half a chance could probably disable the brute. And now as the trail ran downward again they broke into a fast trot once more.

Motionless the one upon the cleft watched them until they had come within a couple of hundred yards, eyeing them with the motionless alertness of an eagle upon his eyrie, then spreading his wings launched himself into open space. The noise of his heavily beating wings came plainly to their ears, his flight was irregular and labored like that of a hawk bearing away a chicken, or an eagle a lamb, and so long as the traveling was good the struggling pair in pursuit nearly kept pace with him. Half a mile further on, however, the canyon bed again became a steeply rising jumble of rocks, and up this they went laboriously. And once again when they reached the summit they saw the object of their pursuit just arising from the trail after a moment's rest and but a stone throw ahead of them, yet still shielded as cunningly as ever by the body of the girl. So on and on they went with the perspiration streaming from their bodies and their hearts thudding heavily, but with the grim determination to follow until exhausted nature bereft them of the power of movement and left them prone and gasping upon the rocks. Tolliver, still a few paces in advance, threw aside his coat with a curse of impatience at its weight, and March, after a minute's consideration, did likewise. It bid fair to be a chase that would draw their strength to the last ounce and wear their endurance to the bone, therefore one could not well travel too light. His collar and vest quickly followed the first garment, and feeling far more free of action and breath by thus having rid himself of those cumbering things, he quickened his pace with a step which once more fell lightly.

An hour had passed with no permanent change in their see-saw positions. As the Flying Man had led the air craft by a distance unvarying to the eye, so now did he lead the toiling two who hung so grimly on his course. When by reason of the steepness or roughness of their path he got so much as half a mile ahead, he would promptly stop and refresh himself until they had come up within a few hundred yards, whereupon he would flounder up with difficulty and resume his flight with heavily beating wings. Noon with its horizontal sun found both pursuers suffering acutely. Despite the coolness of the mountain air their clothing was drenched with perspiration, their limbs racked, their heads swam, their feet tortured, their breath came in wheezing gasps. Yet without pause and without a word uttered they struggled on, first one forging to the lead and then the other, passing and being passed alternately as the footing favored or retarded, sliding down sharp inclines to the rattle of following stones, scrambling up painful ascents where they left the blood of their hands and knees upon the sharp rock edges, sometimes stumbling into a fall that tore ragged gaps in their clothing and raked the skin from their limbs, their mouths half open, their limbs shaking, their breath whistling, their eyes forever glued upon the retreating one who, with a brief rest for every mile, still baffled them as maddeningly as during the first hour. And above all was the incessant torment of their thirst.

One o'clock found them upon the edge of a ravine, deep and precipitous, its bottom a jumbled mass of huge boulders that through the untold centuries of the past had gone crashing to its bottom from the mountain's top. Just ahead of them the winged one was flapping in direct flight for the other side, while they traveling upon their blistered feet must first descend its dizzy slope to its lowest depth, clamber across its chaotic bottom and struggle painfully up the other side—a good mile of heart-breaking struggle against a half mile's unimpeded flight. But pausing not at all they went plunging down with the recklessness of despair, stumbled across the boulder-littered bottom, dragged themselves weak with exhaustion up the opposite slope and staggered to the summit as their foe, invigorated by a half hour's rest, arose just ahead and continued his flight apparently as fresh as when he had started hours before. Reeling of brain and hopeless of heart, their breath coming in sobs, they followed.

THE STAGE AND THE PLAYERS.

Kathryn Clifford with "Little Boy Blue."

THE COLONIAL.

"LITTLE BOY BLUE."

More than ordinary interest is being manifested in the coming engagement of Mr. Savage's superb production of the joyous operetta, "Little Boy Blue" which will be seen at the Colonial Theatre, Monday, March 10, for one performance only, following long runs in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. "Little Boy Blue" was so much of a success in New York city when played at the Lyric Theatre on 42nd street, that it continued there for six months.

The original music play of "Little Boy Blue" was first produced in Vienna and subsequently in Paris and Berlin, and met with extreme favor in each of these three cities. During the trip abroad Mr. Savage obtained the American rights, and forthwith—after Americanizing it—produced it in New York City. The original book was by Rudolph Schanze and Carl Lindau with music by Henry Berony. The American adaptation of the book was made by A. E. Thomas and Edward Paulton.

The story has to do with "Boy Blue" supposedly the heir of an estate in Scotland, who has been missing, and whom his uncle the Earl of Gobberdeen searches for in Paris. This youth has a twin sister and through the machinations of one Dupont, a detective, she is induced to assume boy's clothing and accompany the Bray Scot Laird back to their native land to take up the duties of her brother in regard to the inheritance. Eventually it is discovered that she is a girl but the brother turns up in time to save the situation. The scenes of the play are laid both in Paris and in Scotland; and the music is reminiscent of both countries.

Not only the original production is to be seen here, but with only one important exception, the same company will be in evidence that played "Little Boy Blue" during the long run in New York. The cast is headed by Otis Harlan, one of America's premier comedians—well remembered from his appearance in "Baby Mine" and "A Broken Idol" who will be seen in the role of the funny French detective. Others are Kathleen Clifford, John Dunsmore, Maude Odell, Franklyn Farnum, Katheryn Stevenson, Roland Hogue, and in fact all of those who were first selected by Mr. Savage for the New York run. There is a chorus of 75 pretty and vivacious girls and good looking boys.

GET A TEN CENT BOX OF CASCARETS

Keep Your Liver and Bowels Active and You Feel Bully for Months.

Put aside—just once—the Salts, Cathartic Pills, Castor Oils or purgative waters which merely force a passageway through the bowels, but do not thoroughly cleanse, freshen and purify these drainage or alimentary organs, and have no effect whatever upon the liver and stomach.

Keep your inside organs pure and fresh with Cascarets, which thoroughly cleanse the stomach, remove the undigested, sour and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will make you feel great by morning. They work while you sleep—never gripe, sicken and cost only 10 cents a box from your druggist. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never have Headache, Biliousness, coated tongue, Indigestion, Sour Stomach or Constipated bowels. Cascarets belong in every household. Children just love to take them.—advertisement.

Little Boy Blue is no nursery play,
But a musical treat joyously gay,
That's crowded with gorgeousness, glamor and girls—
Moreover it's one of the merriest whirls.
It bubbles with sentiment, sunshine and song,
It's the very play you've been waiting for ever so long.

COME TO WRIGHT-METZLER'S STORE THIS WEEK

WOMEN WHO COME HERE WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY OR FRIDAY, THE 5th, 6th, and 7th, WILL BE GREATLY SURPRISED TO FIND SUCH A VARIED COLLECTION OF

for boys—little and big—and little girls. The display spreads itself all over the men's clothing store to the exclusion of other merchandise for the three days of the exhibit. Sizes are complete in each group. The bulk of the exhibit and stock is from the famous Regatta factory in America. Some of the finest pieces are foreign-made and imported direct. Regatta apparel is distinctive and so decidedly original that no comparsion can be made with it and other wear things. Features of superiority are perfect buttons, snappy tailoring, accurate lines, fadeless materials (novel and staple) and unsual decorations and trimmings. Truly this exhibit is wonderful: you are invited.

WASH SUITS
SIZES 2½ to 9 YEARS
PRICED $1.00 to $6.50 Each.

Materials are:—Plain chambray, woven gingham, galatea, woven madras, percale, crash crepe, novelty fabrics and pure linen; plain colors, striped effects and white. Colors are warranted fadeless. In white alone are:—drill, pique, Bedford cord, galatea and blouse linen. Styles are:—Middy, Eton, sailor and Russian blouse. Some of the suits are hand embroidered in solid and eyelet designs.

BEACH SUITS
SIZES 1 YEAR TO 8 YEARS
PRICED 59c TO $1.50 EACH

The most popular summer apparel for children. They are loose, comfortable and dressy. All have wide bottoms, knee length; short sleeves; necks are square, V-shaped or high; some have sailor collars. Beach suits are worn by boys or girls. They are made of chambray, madras, gingham, novelty fabrics and pure linen. They are all-white, white with colored trimmings and in plain, fadeless colors. One exceptionally pretty model is made of fine madras, white, with trimming of black-and-white zephyr. It sells for $1.50.

Big Chief Indian Suit
Made By Indians on the Canadian Border.

The suit is made of heavy, tan drilling. Coat and pants are elaborately beaded in colors and decorated with leather patches and fringe. It's real Indian work—application and design. The head gear is beaded and stuck full of colored feathers. Its price is $7.00.

OTHER INDIAN SUITS are of tan drill, decorated and fringed. Outfit consists of coat, pants and headgear. Priced $1.00 complete. Squaw's suits of better materials are $2.50 complete.

Rompers: Creepers
SIZES 6 MOS. to 7 YEARS
PRICED 50c, 75c AND $1.00

The rompers and creepers are superior to any we've ever had. Better buttons, better materials, better fit and better making distinguish them. These are for boys and girls—the girls' models having a pronounced waist line. Plain, fast-color percales in tan and indigo; striped and checked ginghams. All have the blouse knee, long or short sleeves, and square, round or high necks.

NORFOLK SUITS
SIZES 2 TO 16 YEARS
PRICED $5.00 AND MORE

First time we've had such apparel for boys. The suits are made of a heavy crash suiting, pure flax—Coats are Norfolk style and the pants are Knickerbocker.
